Husqvarna Group statement on robotic mower anti-dumping investigation in the UK

Husqvarna Group has filed an anti-dumping complaint with the UK Trade Remedies Authority (TRA) concerning imports of robotic lawn mowers from China into the United Kingdom. Following the complaint, the TRA has announced that it has initiated an anti-dumping investigation.

The purpose of the investigation is to support fair competition in the UK market. It is for the TRA to independently assess whether injurious dumping is taking place and whether trade remedy measures are warranted.

As previously communicated, Husqvarna Group has also filed a separate anti-dumping complaint with the European Commission concerning imports of robotic lawn mowers from China into the European Union. The EU process is separate from the UK investigation, with a final decision from the European Commission expected in mid-January 2027.

Husqvarna Group has confidence in the TRA's process, which is evidence-based and conducted in accordance with UK law and the WTO framework. The Group remains confident in the substance of the case and the evidence submitted and will fully support the investigation.
